WELL KNOWN ORLAND BUSINESS MAN FATALLY INJURED WHEN RACING CAR TURNS TURTLE

Raymond M. Cooper, aged 32 years, widely known business man of Orland, met with a tragic accident Sunday night which ended in his death Monday morning.

Mr. Cooper and family were visiting with the Roy Newton family who are employed on the John Kline farm east of Orland. About seven o'clock Sunday evening a number of boys came in the yard after Schuessler, Jr., and Mr. Cooper with a racing car belonging to Walter who was always much interested in automobiles, got in the racer and wishing to give it a trial, started out of the yard down the road and had only gone a short distance when the front wheels of the racer struck a deep rut causing the car to rear up and flop over. Mr. Cooper was pitched out head first striking the road on his head. The crash was heard by the family and those near rushed to his aid. Upon reaching the scene they saw at once that Mr. Cooper was fatally injured. His back was broken and his skull was badly crushed. A piece of broken bone from his spine had also been forced into his head, showing with what terrific impact he had struck the ground. He was taken to Dr. Schuessler's office and then removed to Burnside hospital, Chicago. Upon examination it was found that he was fatally injured and death was only a question of time, but he lived until 4:30 o'clock Monday morning, although he never regained consciousness. He passed away quietly.

The racing car plainly showed how terrific the crash was as three tires were torn off and one wheel was twisted off the car.

An inquest was held on Tuesday morning.

Mr. Cooper was born and raised in Orland township and was widely known. He quit farming in 1919 to enter the store business. He opened his store in the Beck building, but his business expanded so rapidly that he soon outgrew his quarters and in order to meet the demands of his growing trade, he later purchased the Burkhardt property consisting of a store and flat above and a house. Here his business prospered as never before and he was making good when death cut his career short.

Mr. Cooper was an energetic business man and always had the interest of his community at heart.

When the radio fever struck his town he installed an outfit in his store and gave the young folks an opportunity to enjoy the radio and his store became a sort of forum of the day where big news and issues of the day were discussed. In order that others might enjoy the radio programs he was receiving he connected up a number of homes with loud speakers and re-broadcasted his programs to them at a small charge. "Ray" was well liked and was popular with the young folks and enjoyed the esteem of the older ones.

He had made plans for still further increasing his business activities.

ies this fall

Raymond M. Cooper was born in the town of Orland, April 15, 1892.

At the age of 13 years he united with the Orland Center M. E. On January 26, 1916 he was united in marriage with Miss Hattie Adell Megarry. To this union three sons were born of whom one son born at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet on June 13, 1924, predeceased the father in death.

The funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock concluding at the Orland M. E. church at 2 o'clock. Hundreds of people from all the surrounding community attended the services. The church was far too small to hold the great throng, many having to stand out on the walk and street. The floral offerings were profuse and exceedingly beautiful.

Rev. Mr. Neumeyer, former pastor of the Orland M. E. church and now of Chicago, officiated.

The Imperial quartet of Chicago sang a number of selections.

Burial took place in the Cooper cemetery.

Mr. Cooper is survived by his widow, two sons Merrill and Floyd, his parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cooper of La Grange, two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Stellwagen of Tinley Park, Mrs. Ira Hughes of La Grange, two brothers Edwin and Lawrence also of La Grange, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Minnie Agate of Orland Passes on To Final Reward

Another well known and highly esteemed resident of Orland township passed into the greater life last Sunday, when Miss Minnie Agate answered the final summons.

She was converted and joined the M. E. church at Goodings Grove in 1884. She was a Sunday school teacher for many years.

In recent years her duties at home prevented her from being as active in church work as she wished to be.

She was confined to her bed the last year and a half on account of her illness.

She was a very consecrated woman, always taking life sincerely. She was devoted to her parents and her home and duties never seemed difficult for her, she doing the work gladly. She will always be remembered as a devoted and fine Christian woman.

Shortly before her death, she said in thinking of the sickness through which she had passed and the life beyond "Be not deceived for we know not of the glory that is there", referring to the world beyond. She was ready to go. This reminds us of Moody's last words: "Earth is receding, Heaven is opening. God is calling me and I am ready to go."

God called her from this world to another world to join her father and friends there.

The link has been taken from the chain on earth and is added to the ever increasing chain in the other world.

Her life has been a great blessing here on earth and she has gone to be a blessing and continue her work of mercy and kindness in the other world.

Minnie Elizabeth Agate was born on Sept. 17, 1871 and passed to the beyond August 3, 1924, attaining the age of 52 years, 10 months and 17 days.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her mother, one sister and three brothers besides many friends.

Tribute to A Friend

With the untimely and tragic passing of Raymond M. Cooper of Orland, the editor of the News-Bulletin has lost a close and a real personal friend, for Mr. Cooper was in every sense of the word A REAL TRUE FRIEND.

It was the editor's pleasure to first make the acquaintance of Mr. Cooper in the fall of 1919 during the News-Bulletin's first circulation campaign in which he took a very active part. In all our business and social relations, we have always found Mr. Cooper standing for that which was right and just.

Mr. Cooper was a progressive business man of which his community could well be proud and he also always had the interest of his community at heart. His genial spirit always made us feel at home when in his presence. Many a time Mr. Cooper went out of his way to swing business our way and even made trips over to Mokena to put up propositions to us that were for our benefit and he never hesitated to speak a good word for the News-Bulletin wherever he could.

All these favors and manifestations of interest in our welfare were not actuated by any selfish purpose, but came from the heart of a true friend.

When we heard of his sudden and tragic death we could not fully comprehend that it was a cold reality, for it seemed it must only be an ugly nightmare which would vanish, but alas! we found it an unalterable stern fact that the good friend whose friendship we had cherished so much was no more of this world. But even in his presence shall be no more seen, yet his big hearted spirit of friendship will always remain as a pleasant memory.

As we felt how keen was the loss of this dear friend, we too can feel our sympathy going out to his loved ones to whom he was even bound with closer ties than those of friendship.

In a time of such sudden and tragic bereavement as in this case mere words of humans cannot console the sorrow crushed spirit of the bereaved ones to their irreparable loss and the only balm is to be found in the consciousness that an All Wise and Merciful Being has the soul of the departed in his infinite care and that we have the hope that some day when the tragedies of this life are over we will be united again in a land in which there shall be no more partings or sorrow.

Let us take a lesson from the life of Mr. Cooper that it is better to leave a spirit of friendship and good will that can be cherished by neighbors and friends through the years, than to live only for self and in passing leave no heritage or feeling of regret.

Farewell friend Cooper until we shall meet again in a better world.

MOKENA MEN OPEN INSURANCE OFFICE IN JOLIET

Gustave Olson and James Raffau of Mokena, have opened an insurance office in the Ottawa Building in Joliet, in connection with the real estate office of Silas Hopkins, well known Joliet real estate man. Their firm will be known as the Hopkins Agency. They will write all kinds of insurance, fire, accident, life, automobile, etc.

Both young men have had much experience, having worked for Chicago insurance offices for the past 8 years. They have the best wishes of their friends for a successful business.

Funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, burial in Brooks cemetery, Rev. Mr. Neumeyer former pastor of the Orland M. E. church, but now of Chicago officiating.

New Bus Lines Furnish Hourly Transportation

A milestone in the development of the southwest suburbs of Chicago was reached when the Southwest Towns Bus Line commenced their service last Friday.

The new bus line projection met with an encouraging success the first week, giving an hourly schedule from six in the morning until twelve at night and in service on 3 routes.

Route No. 1 connects Chicago (95th Street and Vincennes), Beverly Hills, Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Worth, Palos Park, and Orland. Routes Nos. 2 and 3 connect Justice Park (Archer Avenue and Kean) with Oak Lawn and Palos Park, respectively.

This gives a convenient service for all those having their working places on the South Side and their homes in the suburbs. The busses bring the markets of Englewood, Morgan Park and Blue Island within easy reach of the housewife. They will tend to bring the people of the neighboring villages together in social and community-spirited ways, and may prove a stepping stone toward the central school, since they are an aid in carrying the children to a village center.

The busses serve the need for a convenient and inexpensive way for the part of the taxpaying public without automobiles to reach the five thousand acres of Palos Forest Preserves, sometimes called the Berkshire Hills of Cook County. In addition to the Forest Preserves, there are several golf courses also reached by the line, namely, Black Bear, Hickory Hills, Southmoore Country Club and Oak Hills.

To reach Route No. 1 take the 11th and Sacramento Avenue Car along Halsted, or the Southern Traction at 63rd and Halsted, to 95th Street and Vincennes Avenue. To reach Routes 2 and 3 take the Chicago & Joliet Electric Railway to Archer and Kean Avenues.

Miss Pearl Freberg Weds B. I. Ma

Saturday evening saw most of Tinley Park in its Sunday attire, to witness the marriage of Miss Pearl Freberg of Tinley Park, to Mr. Homer Hawaiian of Blue Island, in Zion Church, Rev. Buddenhagen officiating.

The bride entered upon the arm of her father. She was gowned in white satin and lace and veil, trimmed with lily of the valley and was attended by Mrs. Etzel Wanamacher as matron of honor and Miss Eva Kerr and Miss Anna Dolan as bridesmaids, preceded by three little maidens, Pearl and Violet Olsen and Bernetta Wanamaker.

The groom was attended by Mr. J. Gurgle as best man, assisted by Messrs. H. Maln and Clarence Ames. Miss Selma Brueggeman sang two beautiful solos, "At Dawning" and "Oh Promise Me."

Supper was served in the Saenger hall. Mr. A. M. Lucas was the toastmaster. Rev. Buddenhagen also gave a short talk. After the supper, dancing was enjoyed by all. Gifts too numerous to mention and very beautiful as well as useful were received by the newly-weds.

The young couple are spending a quiet honeymoon at present in Wisconsin, and upon their return will make Tinley Park their home. They have the best wishes of all their friends.

Frankfort Justice Has Busy Week

Justice Frank J. Kohlhaugen of Frankfort has had a busy week. He heard two law suits. On Monday afternoon he heard the suit of Elmer Knoop against Henry Cellarius on an assault and battery charge.

According to the story told in court Knoop claimed Cellarius hit him at a barn dance he attended near Monee on July 30. On the other hand Cellarius claimed that the plaintiff had picked an argument, passing himself off as a prize fighter and saying he could lick anyone on the place. He got into an argument with the defendant and it was alleged attempted to hurl him over a railing about 6 feet from the floor when the defendant in self defense administered a severe beating to Knoop. Mr. Cellarius had for his witnesses Henry Ruder, Philip Lilly and Fred Smith. As this was a state case Attorney A. H. Krusemark was appointed assistant state's attorney in the absence of the states attorney while attorney Charles Blim of Joliet represented the defense. After hearing all the witnesses and a number of warm legal tilts, Justice Kohlhaugen dismissed the case on the ground that there was no cause for action.

On Tuesday afternoon Justice Kohlhaugen heard the case of John Waldvogel vs. Henry Oetter. According to the testimony, Waldvogel claimed that Oetter owed him $59.50 for board and for cash money advanced him. On the other hand Oetter claimed Waldvogel owed him $9.50. After much arguing Mr. Waldvogel said he wanted to have the affair settled and offered to knock off $10 from his claim, but this the court would not allow and finally the matter was settled by the court entering a judgment for $55 against Oetter. Both cases were held in the village hall and attracted big crowds.

250 TICKETS SOLD AT MOKENA DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT

The Mokena Men's Club had one of the most successful dances of the entire season last Saturday night when they sold 250 dance tickets. The good music furnished by the Weissner orchestra of Chicago has been making a hit and drawing the crowds. The club will give another moonlight picnic on Saturday night, August 23rd.

Chicago on August 23rd when teams from Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota will participate. Mr. Bennitt is a member of the Illinois Athletic club and has been much interested in athletics for years.

Tinley Farmer Recovers Car and Securities

Edward Andres of Tinley Park who had $15,000 in cash, notes and Liberty Bonds stolen from his bureau drawer bank several weeks ago and also his auto, has recovered his property the past week. It is said that Mr. Andres found his car on a farm near Lokport and that all of the money and valuable papers were found under the cushions of the car. The affair is a much mixed up one and it looks as tho the whole affair had been engineered by home talent for a stranger would not have been able to locate the money as easily as it was and then to return it again.

Frankfort Opens Drive Against Fast Driving

Frankfort has open a decided drive against speeders. On Monday night at the regular village board meeting, mayor Max F. Haass signed an ordinance which is said to be the most ironclad one yet passed. This ordinance is so written that anyone violating its provisions may be arrested for its violation or for violation of the state law which is interwoven with the local ordinance which was drawn by Attorney A. H. Krusemark.

The new ordinance provides the speed of motor vehicles on streets of Frankfort shall not exceed 10 miles in the business section nor 15 miles per hour in the residence section and no vehicle is supposed to turn a corner faster than 6 miles per hour. All trailers must carry a red flag by day and a red lanterns by night. There are also provisions governing horse drawn vehicle traffic. Violations of any of the provisions of this ordinance are punishable by a fine ranging from $5 to $200.

All aldermen of Frankfort have been empowered to make arrests. Since the war on speeding has been inaugurated several arrests have been made and the offenders have been brought before Justice F. J. Kohlhaugen who assessed fines and costs. Frankfort streets are not to be used as speedways and the new ordinance will be strictly enforced say the city dads.

Frankfort Puts on Street Curbing

Frankfort is putting on real city style by building street curbs. A concrete curbing is now under construction from the Dr. W. V. Hedges corner to the Frank J. Kohlhaugen corner.

CHAPTER XXVI—Continued.

Those "indications" were the letters of one John Anderson, who described himself as a prominent officer in the American army. The letters were written to Sir Henry Clinton. They asked for a command in the British army and hinted at the advantage to be derived from facts of prime importance, in the writer's possession.

Margaret and her mother sailed with Sir Roger Walte and his regiments on the tenth of March and arrived in New York on the twenty-sixth of April.

The month of May, 1780, gave Washington about the worst pinch in his career. It was the pinch of hunger. Supplies had not arrived. Famine had entered the camp and begun to threaten its life. Soldiers can get along without pay but they must have food. Mutiny broke out among the recruits.

In the midst of this trouble, Lafayette, the handsome French marquis, then twenty-three years old, arrived on his white horse, after a winter in Paris, bringing word that a fleet and army from France were heading across the sea. This news revived the drooping spirit of the army. Soon boats began to arrive from down the river with food from the east. The crisis passed. In the North a quiet summer followed. The French fleet with six thousand men under Rochambeau arrived at Newport, July tenth, and were immediately blockaded by the British as was a like expedition fitting out at Brest. Washington could only hold to his plan of prudent waiting.

On a clear, warm day, late in July 1780, a handsome coach drawn by four horses crossed King's Ferry and tolled up the Highland road. It carried Benedict Arnold and his wife and their baggage. Jack and Solomon passed and recognized them.

"What does that mean, I wonder?" Jack queried.

"Dun know," Solomon answered. "I'm scared about it," said the younger scout. "I am afraid that this money seeker has the confidence of Washington. He has been a good fighting man. That goes a long way with the chief."

Colonel Irons stopped his horse. "I am of half a mind to go back," he declared.

"Why?"

"I didn't tell the general half that Reed said to me. It was so bitter and yet I believe it was true. I ought to have told him. Perhaps I ought now to go and tell him."

"There's time 'nough," said Solomon. "Wait till we get back. Sometimes I've thought the chief needed advice but it's allus turned out that I was the one that needed it."

The two horsemen rode on in silence. It was the middle of the afternoon of that memorable July day. They were bound for the neutral territory between the American and British lines, infested by "cowboys" from the South and "skinners" from the North who were raiding the farms of the settlers and driving away their cattle to be sold to the opposing armies. The two scouts were sent to learn the facts and report upon them. They parted at a cross-road. It was near sundown when at a beautiful brook, bordered with spearmint and wild iris, Jack watered and fed his horse and sat down to eat his luncheon. He was thinking of Arnold and the new danger when he discovered that a man stood near him. The young scout had failed to hear his approach—a circumstance in no way remarkable since the road was little traveled and covered with moss and creeping herbage. He thought not of this, however, but only of the face and form of a man of middle age. The young man wrote in a letter:

"It was a singularly handsome face, smooth-shaven and well-shaped with large, dark eyes and a skin very clean and perfect—I had almost said it was transparent. Add to all this a look of friendliness and masterful dignity and you will understand why I rose to my feet and took off my hat. His stature was above my own, his form erect. I remember nothing about his clothes save that they were dark in color and seemed to be new and admirably fitted.

"You are John Irons, Jr., and I am Henry Thornhill," said he. "I saw you at Kinderhook where I used to live. I liked you then and, since the war began, I have known of your adventures. I saw you passing a little way back and I followed for I have something to say to you."

"I shall be glad to hear of it," was my answer.

"Washington cannot be overcome by his enemies unless he is betrayed by his friends. Arnold has been put in command at West Point. He has planned the betrayal of the army."

"Do you know that?" I asked.

"As well as I know light and darkness."

"Have you told Washington?"

"No. As yet I have had no opportunity. I am telling him, now, through you. In his friendships he is a singularly stubborn man. The wiles of an enemy are as an open book to him, but those of a friend he is not able to comprehend. He will discredit or only half believe any warning that you or I may give him. But it is for you and Solomon to warn him and be not deceived."

"I shall turn about and ride back to camp," I said.

"There is no need of haste," he answered. "Arnold does not assume command until the third of August."

"He shaded his eyes and looked toward the west where the sun was setting and the low-lying clouds were like rose-colored islands in a golden sea, and added as he hurried away down the road to the south:

"It is a beautiful world."

"Too good for fighting men," I answered as I sat down to finish my luncheon for I was still hungry.

"While I ate, the tormenting thought came to me that I had neglected to ask for the source of his information or for his address. It was a curious oversight due to his masterly manner and that sense of the guarded tongue which an ordinary mortal is apt to feel in the presence of a great personality. I had been, in a way, self-brided and cautious in my speech, as I have been wont to be in the presence of Washington himself. I looked down the road ahead. The stranger had rounded a bend and was now hidden by the bush. I hurried through my repast, bridled my horse and set off at a gallop expecting to overtake him, but to my astonishment he had left the road. I did not see him again, but his words were ever with me in the weeks that followed.

"I reached the Corlies farm, far down in the neutral territory, at ten o'clock and a little before dawn was with Corlies and his neighbors in a rough fight with a band of cattle thieves, in the course of which three men and a boy were seriously disabled by my pistols. We had salted a herd and concealed ourselves in the midst of it and so were able to shoot from good cover when the thieves arrived. Solomon and I spent four days in the neutral territory. When we left it a dozen cattle thieves were in need of repair and three had moved to parts unknown. Save in the southern limit, their courage had been broken.

"I had often thought of Nancy, the blaze-faced mare, that I had got from Governor Reed and traded to Mr. Paulding. I was again reminded of her by meeting a man who had just come from Tarrytown. Being near that place I rode on to Paulding's farm and spent a night in his house. I found Nancy in good flesh and spirits. She seemed to know and like the touch of my hand and, standing by her side, the notion came to me that I ought to own her. Paulding was reduced in circumstances. Having been a patriot and a money lender the war had impoverished him. My own horse was worn by overwork and so I proposed a trade and offered a sum to boot which he promptly accepted. I came back up the north road with the handsome, high-headed mare under my saddle. The next night I stopped with one Reuben Smith near the northern limit of the neutral territory below Stony Point. Smith had prospered by selling supplies to the patriot army. I had heard that he was a Tory and so I wished to know him. I found him a rugged, jovial, long-haired man of middle age, with a ready ringing laugh. His jokes were spoken in a low tone and followed by quick, stertorous breathing and roars and gestures of appreciation.

"He looked my mare over carefully before he led her to the stable.

"Next morning as he stood by her head, he asked if I would sell her.

"You couldn't afford to own that mare," I said.

"I had touched his vanity. In fact I did not realize how much he had made by his overcharging. He was better able to own her than I and that he proposed to show me.

"He offered for her another horse and a sum which caused me to take account of my situation. The money would be a help to me. However, I shook my head. He increased his offer.

"What do you want of her?" I asked.

"I've always wanted to own a boss like that," he answered.

"I intended to keep the mare," said I. "But if you will treat her well and give her a good home I shall let you have her."

"A man who likes a good joke will never drive a spavined horse," he answered merrily.

"So it happened that the mare Nancy fell into the hands of Reuben Smith."

CHAPTER XXVII

Love and Treason.

When Jack and Solomon returned to headquarters, Arnold and his wife were settled in a comfortable house overlooking the river. Colonel Irons made his report. The commander in chief complimented him and invited the young man to make a tour of the camp in his company. They mounted their horses and rode away together.

"I learn that General Arnold is to be in command here," Jack remarked soon after the ride began.

"I have not yet announced my intention," said Washington. "Who told you?"

"A man of the name of Henry Thornhill."

"I do not know him but he is curiously well informed. Arnold is an able officer. We have not many like him. He is needed here for I have to go on a long trip to eastern Connecticut to confer with Rochambeau. In the event of some unforeseen crisis Arnold would know what to do."

Then Jack spoke out: "General, I ought to have reported to you the exact words of Governor Reed. They were severe, perhaps, even, unjust. I have not repeated them to any one. But now I think you should know their full content and judge of them in your own way. The governor insists that Arnold is bad at heart—that he would sell his master for thirty pieces of silver."

Washington made no reply, for a moment, and then his words seemed to have no necessary relation to those of Jack Irons.

"General Arnold has been badly cut up in many battles," said he. "I wish him to be relieved of all trying details. You are an able and prudent man. I shall make you his chief aide with the rank of brigadier general. He needs rest and will concern himself little with the daily routine. In my absence, you will be the superintendent of the camp, and subject to orders I shall leave with you. Colonel Binkus will be your helper. I hope that you may be able to keep yourself on friendly terms with the general."

Jack reported to the commander in chief the warning of Thornhill, but the former made light of it.

"The air is full of evil gossip," he said. "You may hear it of me."

When they rode up to headquarters Arnold was there. To Jack's surprise the major general greeted him with friendly words, saying:

"I hope to know you better for I have heard much of your courage and fighting quality."

On the third of August—the precise date named by Henry Thornhill—Arnold took command of the camp and Irons assumed his new duties. The major general rode with Washington every day until, on the fourteenth of September, the latter set out with three aides and Colonel Binkus on his trip to Connecticut. Solomon rode with the party for two days and then returned. Thereafter Arnold left the work of his office to Jack and gave his time to the enjoyment of the company of his wife and a leisure that suffered little interruption. For him, grim-visaged war had smoothed his wrinkled front. Like Richard he had hung up his bruised arms. The day of Washington's departure, Mrs. Arnold invited Jack to dinner. The young man felt bound to accept this opportunity for more friendly relations.

Mrs. Arnold was a handsome, vivacious, blonde young woman of thirty. The officer speaks in a letter of her lively talk and winning smiles and splendid figure, well fitted with a costume that reminded him of the court ladies in France.

"What a contrast to the worn, patched uniforms to be seen in that camp!" he added.

Soon after the dinner began, Mrs. Arnold said to the young man, "We have heard of your romance. Colonel and Mrs. Hare and their young daughter spent a week in our home in Philadelphia on their first trip to the colonies. Later Mrs. Hare wrote to my mother of their terrible adventure in the great north bush and spoke of Margaret's attachment for the handsome boy who had helped to rescue them, so I have some right to my interest in you. I happen to know a detail in your story which may be new to you. Miss Hare is now with her father in New York."

"In New York?"

"Oddso! In New York! We heard in Philadelphia that she and her mother had sailed with Sir Roger Walte in March. How jolly it would be if the general and I could bring you together and have a wedding at headquarters!"

"I could think of no greater happiness save that of seeing the end of the war," Jack answered.

"The war! That is a little matter. I want to see a proper end to this love story."

She laughed and ran to the spinnet and sang "Shepherds, I Have Lost My Love."

Insects Lead All

It is computed that there are five times as many different kinds of insects as there are species of all other living things put together. Seventy years ago the number of species of insects preserved in collections was about 170,000. Today it is estimated that there are 750,000 sorts, and that without counting the parasitic creatures. In Europe alone there are 350,000 species. Most insects live on trees or plants. There are known to be 450 sorts which make their home in oak-trees, and about 200 in the pine. Of beetles alone the varieties exceed 190,000.

Felt Safe in Graveyard

A colored man, passing a graveyard shortly after daylight, saw another colored brother emerging from the grounds, putting on his coat and giving evidence of having slept in the cemetery the previous night.

"My Lawd! Jake," he greeted him, "Wasn't you skeered to sleep in de graveyard all night?"

"Yas," admitted Jake. "But de ol' woman was on a rampage and the graveyard is de onliest place she's skeered to foler me."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Did Seem Peculiar

Girl friend bought a slip-on, which, as cognoscent know, is the filmy thing a lady gets into first. Then she went to a theater and lost the package. Called up the manager.

"Was anything found in Box A after the matinee?" she asked.

"Don't know," said the manager.

"I'll inquire. What was it?"

Girl friend blushed unseen at the other end of the wire. Then she stammered:

"It—it was a slip-on."

"I'll ask," said the manager. "But how in the name of Mike did you manage to lose it?"—Atlanta Constitution.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON X

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman
Public Education Commission, American Bankers Association.

When opening a commercial account the bank furnishes the depositor with a pass book, deposit slips and blank checks.

COMMERCIAL ACCOUNT—Account in bank used in connection with funds employed in business transactions, from which withdrawals are made by checks.

PASS BOOK—A small account book in which the bank enters a customer's deposits; an entry serves as his receipt for that amount.

DEPOSIT SLIPS—Printed blanks with spaces in which the depositor writes the amount of cash and of each check deposited.

BLANK CHECKS—Printed forms for orders on the bank to pay out money from the depositor's account. The depositor writes in the name of the person to whom he wants money paid, the amount he wishes paid, and then signs his own name. When the check comes to the bank it pays the sum of money as indicated, deducting it from the depositor's account, and keeps the check which it cancels. Cancelled checks are each month returned to the depositor and serve him as receipts for the payments made.

About ninety per cent. of all business transactions are finally paid by bank checks. They facilitate business and are a safe way to transmit funds in paying bills, wages or meeting other obligations.

THE BANKER

The banker is a business man but, at the same time, he is a public servant. He manages his institution to earn dividends for its stockholders, but it has now come to be regarded as his duty to give sound advice and perform many services which result in no direct addition to his earnings account. He accepts the deposits of the parents for the account of the baby when it is born. He keeps the funds and invests them as the child grows. He advises the young man when, on leaving school, he enters business. His counsel is given with financial assistance as the business develops. When his client retires from its management he acts as trustee in handling his investments and finally upon the client's death, he is called upon to administer the estate and act as an advisor to the heirs. A knowledge gained from books is a necessary part of his preparation but he needs many things which he cannot learn in that way—greatest among them, an understanding of human nature.—Clarence R. Chaney, President American Institute of Banking.

AMERICA'S AMAZING PROGRESS IN THE PAST HUNDRED YEARS

Material Progress Staggers the Imagination, but Real Wealth Is in the Character of the People Inherited From the Pilgrim Fathers.

By WALTER W. HEAD, President The American Bankers Association

One hundred years ago when Lafayette re-visited America, he found the United States a nation of little more than ten million people—less than one-tenth of the present number. The territory embraced less than 1,800,000 square miles instead of the present 3,700,000. Half was still a wilderness of unsettled plain, plateau and mountains.

Only one hundred years ago, the world was still agog over the recent passage of the "Savannah," an American sailing vessel equipped with paddle-wheels propelled by steam, from New York to Liverpool in twenty-six days. Today we boast of a trans-Atlantic airplane crossing that "Savannah" required days.

One hundred years ago the total national wealth was less than a billion dollars, less than $100 per capita; today the national wealth exceeds 300 billion dollars—an average of almost $3,000 per capita. In 1821 there were ten savings banks with 3,635 depositors, with $1,138,000 on deposit; one hundred years later—more than thirty million depositors had more than $18,000,000,000 savings deposits. The total receipts of the federal government in 1823 were $20,500,000, the total expenditures were $14,700,000. Last year our national income and expenditures each exceeded $3,500,000,000.

One hundred years ago there were no railroads, no automobiles, no airplanes. There were no telephones, no telegraph lines, no cables. There was no gasoline, no kerosene. There are those among us who regard the present as a period confronted with unprecedented problems, a period beset by perils heretofore unequalled. There are those who express doubt of our ability to make further progress—some even who profess to foresee the destruction and disintegration of our social, political and economic structure. In the light of achievements that have been wrought in the past by firm adherence to true principles, in the light of the tremendous resources our country now controls, what justification can men have today for expressing doubt of America's future?

America's Resources Today
We have today 110,000,000 people. Our total bank deposits aggregate approximately 40 billion dollars. Outstanding life insurance amounts to more than 70 billion dollars. Our 500 million acres of improved farm lands are valued at 77 billion dollars. We have wealth untold in our forests, in our mines of iron and coal. We have more than 250,000 miles of railroad with which to transport our selves and our articles of commerce; we have more than 250,000 miles of commercial telegraph lines and 800,000 miles of telephone lines to afford us communication; we have 20,000 daily and weekly newspapers to disseminate information and to bind our

The Character of Our People
From it have come the patience and the wisdom which have reconciled effective authority and adequate liberty. From it has come the tolerance which has preserved freedom of speech, of press and of pulpit. From it has come the foresight which established free public schools. From it has come the courage which commanded adherence to principle at the cost of selfish gain, even at the cost of life itself. From it has come the respect for the rights and privileges of one's fellow man which has found expression in guarantees of equal representation and universal suffrage.

The character of our people is a spring which has never run dry. It has had its source ever and always in the stern and firm faith of the Pilgrim fathers—a political faith based upon and grounded in the tenets of the Christian religion. Despite every other influence, the strong and steady current of the Pilgrim's faith has persisted through generation after generation.

It is this invaluable resource—the capacity and character of our people—that has made America great in the past, that will make America greater and more powerful in the future. As long as we uphold our established standards of belief and conduct, we need have no fear for the future of America.

WORTH M. E. CHURCH

Last Sunday the pastor preached twice on the subject "The Home Where Christ Dwells" and "The Joyous Christ." Next Sunday morning his subject will be "Youth's Opportunity." Text: "Let no man despise thy youth." This service will be of special interest to young people of the community who are especially invited.

The Sunday school picnic, postponed for a week because of rain, held last Thursday, July 31 at Swallow Cliff. A fine time was enjoyed by all in spite of rather threatening weather. During the afternoon a ball game was played between teams captained by Herbert Stewart and Herbert Foyle, and was won by the former. Other games and athletic events were also enjoyed. A word of thanks is due all those who lent their automobiles and aided in other respects.

Next Saturday, afternoon August 9th an outing will be held at Swallow Cliff for the young people under the auspices of the Segoea Class. All of the young people of Worth are cordially invited and a splendid time is anticipated. The party will meet at the church at 2:30, but those who can come later are urged to do so.

BANKERS' VIEW ON CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

The attitude of the American Bankers Association on co-operative marketing favors proper organization to facilitate the orderly movement of farm products, but holds that the co-operatives are as amenable to economic laws as any form of business and cannot be used to gain special benefits for the farmer contrary to the influences of supply and demand and other normal factors. This view was formulated recently by Frank W. Simmonds of the Association before the National Council of Farmers Co-operative and Marketing Associations at Washington.

"It would be unfortunate for the farmer if he becomes imbued with the idea that co-operative marketing in itself is a panacea for all agricultural ills," Mr. Simmonds said. "Co-operative marketing, well organized and wisely managed, can be most helpful in solving market problems. It may prevent untimely dumping, it may secure better credit facilities, it may extend existing markets, it may even create new markets, but obviously its operations will be as amenable to economic law as those of other business enterprises."

What It Cannot Do

"Co-operative marketing cannot prevent other countries with cheaper land and labor from selling in foreign markets at a price unattractive to us. It cannot successfully over-ride the law of supply and demand or maintain for any length of time an artificially high price by withholding a product from market or unduly limiting production. Sane, orderly marketing must be accompanied by sane, orderly thinking."

"We may wisely take a leaf from Danish experience and emphasize efficient, economical, maximum production of standard grade products, for however important co-operative marketing may be in solving the exigencies of the present time, it is only one link in the chain of agricultural problems."

The American Bankers Association Mr. Simmonds said, believes that solutions of farm problems "should be sought through private enterprise and not through government aid," and approves the endeavors of farmers for orderly marketing.

Stone Trucks Are The Berries For Spooning

In the days of old our grandmothers thought it was the height of courtship joys to go out "buggy riding" with their beaux, and later when the autos came into being, no one in love with a girl would hardly think of going for a ride in the old time buggy with old dobbin trudging slowly along, for this is a new era and courtships demanded that the "steady" must conduct his love affairs in a swift way in keeping with the day and age. Only a limousine was to be considered by some girls and realizing all this imagine the shock a couple of men of Frankfort experienced the other night when they saw two big three ton stone trucks standing along the highway north of Frankfort and a spooning couple in each truck. Oh how the world do move! All you fellows who have been taking your sweeties out for a spin in your car better take a lesson from this tale and when you go calling on her the next time leave your "can" at home and come in your new 3 ton truck for then you have so much more room and no one will care to run in to you if you should happen to stop in the middle of the road to spoon. Wot a world Watson, wot a world.

Roots and Herbs Best for Kidneys

Daniel G. Carey, M. D.

BACKACHE

said Dr. Carey is a pretty sure sign that all is not well with your kidneys. Delay may be dangerous—thousands of people die every year from kidney troubles and many could be saved if the right medicine was taken in time.

Dr. Carey knew how to mix roots and herbs and for over 40 years his famous Marshroot Prescription 777 helped thousands of despairing people. It's the one remedy for backache troubles. Don't take chances—ask your druggist for it by name—liquid or tablet form—equally good, 75c. If your local druggist hasn't it he can get it from the Carey Medical Laboratories at Elmira, N. Y.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Dr. Frederick R. Green,
Editor of "Health."

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)
VITAMINES

WHEN Nebuchadnezzar carried the Jews away captive to Babylon, he told his court chamberlain to select four young Hebrew captives, "comely and without blemish," to serve in his court.

Daniel, Shadrach, Meshack and Abednego were selected and put in a school for courtiers, along with a lot of young Babylonians.

That they might have the best of food the king commanded that they be fed from his own table.

But Daniel and his companions refused the rich foods and demanded that they be fed "pulse and water."

When their training was completed the chamberlain found that the young captives were "more comely and of better appearance" than their Babylonian companions.

Why?

It has taken us three thousand years to find out.

Daniel and his three friends ate plain, fresh food. The Babylonians ate heavily spiced and richly seasoned dishes.

We know now that the human body must have a certain amount of fresh, living food.

Primitive people learned this long ago. The Arabs eat dates; the Moors eat figs; the South Sea Islanders eat breadfruit and coconuts; the natives of central Africa eat bananas; the Indians ate fruits and berries.

Even the Eskimos, without fresh fruits or vegetables, eat raw seal meat or fresh blubber.

When sailing vessels made long voyages and when methods of preserving food were limited, sailors kept too long on salt meat and dry biscuits developed scurvy. The gums softened, the teeth fell out, the mucous membranes bled and finally the men died.

The food was good enough, but there was no living matter in it.

As soon as the sailors got limes, lemons, oranges, bananas, apples, even raw potatoes, the scurvy disappeared.

Recent experiments show that animals given a proper amount of green food are larger, stronger and better developed than those deprived of such feed, no matter how abundant their diet.

The substances in raw, fresh food necessary for health and growth are called vitamins. From the Latin word vita, meaning life. Insufficient amounts of these substances cause rickets, eye diseases, scurvy, decay of the teeth, dropsy and paralysis.

So the age-old experience of the human race and the latest scientific research agree that the human body must have fresh fruits and raw vegetables if it is to be strong and healthy.

Cabbage, lettuce, celery, radishes, tomatoes, apples, oranges, grape fruit and other fresh foods should form a regular part of our daily diet.

PINK EYE

PINK eye is a very common and very uncomfortable condition. It is ordinarily known as "sore eyes." Almost everyone has had a mild or a severe attack at some time.

It generally occurs in warm weather and is caused by a small germ or plant, a near relative of the influenza bug.

The infection is generally contracted through towels which have been used by an infected person or by bathing in swimming tanks which have been used by others having the disease. The germ may be carried through the air. The condition is often found in epidemics in schools.

For the first two days after infection about the only thing noticed is a slight itching or irritation of the eye, as if a cinder or a grain of sand had gotten in. On the third morning the eyelids are often found stuck together so that the eye cannot be opened. The lids are swollen and bloodshot. The flow of tears is increased and burning of the lids is constantly present. The discharge increases and becomes yellowish in color and the lids become intensely congested and inflamed. The attack lasts from three to seven days, after which the inflammation gradually disappears. In severe cases it may last for months.

To avoid this painful condition don't use towels that anyone else has used. Be sure that you bathe only in clean water. If your eyes begin to itch and smart, be sure that it isn't due to a cinder or a foreign body. If the irritation lasts more than two days, have a competent physician examine your eyes or, if this isn't possible, put on cloths wrung out of cold water, wash the eyes frequently with boric acid solution, keep out of the dust and strong light and put one drop of a 20 per cent solution of argyrol (which can be bought, with a dropper, at your drug store) in each eye four or five times a day.

Don't use patent medicines or eye drops. Don't put on bandages or poultices or anything else except cloths wrung out of cold water. Don't allow anyone else to use towels or cloths which you have used.

If the redness does not entirely disappear in a week or ten days, get the advice of a competent physician. Otherwise the inflammation may last for a considerable period.

Lesson for August 10

FIRST MIRACLE OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 2:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."—John 2:5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus at a Wedding.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Miracle at Cana.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Adds to Joy.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Enriching Social Life.

I. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1, 2).
Marriage was ordained by God and the first wedding was sanctioned by His presence (Gen. 2:22-24). Indeed, He must have performed the first marriage ceremony. It is not only honorable in all (Heb. 13:4) but when based on true affection it is the highest and best of human relationships next to union with the Lord. It promotes the physical, moral and spiritual well-being of both husband and wife and makes possible an atmosphere for the nurture of children. Marriage is not only an honorable relation but a wedding is a most beautiful occasion for all normal human beings.

1. Attended by Jesus' Mother and His Disciples (vv. 1, 2). The friends at this marriage feast were related to Jesus by blood and grace. To be united to Jesus Christ by the bonds of grace does not interfere with normal human relations but sanctifies them.

2. Attended by Jesus (v. 2). God attended the first marriage on earth (Gen. 2:22) and Jesus, who was about His Father's business (Luke 2:49), set a mark of honor upon every spring of human life by gracing this marriage feast with His presence. The Redeemer of man as He entered upon His exalted career thus lifted the holy ordinance of marriage to its proper dignity and beauty. Man by polygamy, adultery, divorce and fornication has basely degraded it.

II. The Anxiety of Jesus' Mother (vv. 3-5).

1. The Wine Failed (v. 3). Although this was a trying social exigency it seems to have been quite natural. The arrival of Jesus and His disciples put a drain upon the resources of the host, for these guests were bidden after they had reached Cana.

2. Mary Presents the Need to Jesus (v. 3). The clear implication is that Jesus was to present His Messianic claims by working a miracle to supply the lack of wine. We may learn two lessons from Mary:

(1) In our great needs, when our resources are exhausted, we like Mary should come to Jesus for help.

(2) Let us not prescribe to Jesus the manner in which His help is to be given. While it was right for Mary to come to Him in her need, it was not her province to dictate how help should be given.

3. Jesus' Assertion of Authority (v. 5). He respectfully reminded His mother that He had passed from her authority—that His Father's will was supreme.

4. Mary's Confidence (v. 5). Although with calm dignity He asserted His authority, there must have been some sign by which He gave her to understand that He would not fail her in this embarrassing emergency. She directed the servants to be ready to carry out whatever instructions He should issue.

III. The Water Made Wine, a Display of Jesus' Creative Power (vv. 6-9).
A miracle is the display of the supernatural. It is not against the laws of nature but the execution of issues beyond nature.

1. The Measure of This Miracle (v. 6). The six vessels had perhaps a capacity of 120 gallons. Jesus is unstinted in His gifts. Twelve baskets were left over from feeding the Five Thousand.

2. Its Freedom From Display (vv. 7, 8). The mighty works of the Lord are not for display, not for the gaze of men. While not for display, it was so real that the disciples and guests knew that it was wrought by divine power.

3. Its Design. Its primary aim was to show the divine glory. Though Jesus would not use His divine power to relieve His own hunger, He responded to the plea to supply the wants of others.

4. Its Reality (v. 9). This was not a sham, a make-believe. To prove its reality it was brought to the governor of the feast, presumably the bridegroom.

IV. The Surprised Table Masters (vv. 10, 11).
The excellence of the wine was praised by the ruler of the feast. Christ gives, not only quantity, but quality.

Light and Darkness

A candle is not lighted for itself; neither is a man. The light that serves self only is no true light, its one virtue is that it will soon go out. . . . Light unshared is darkness.—George MacDonald.

Prayer as a Weapon

Prayer is a strong wall and fortress of the church; it is a goodly Christian's weapon, which no man knows nor finds but he who has the spirit of grace and of prayer.—Martin Luther.

Her Neighbor's Advice Helped Mrs. Frick

MRS. ADA FRICK
PERRYSBURG, OHIO

"YOU can be just as healthy, strong and happy as I am," said one woman to her neighbor after listening to the description of her ailments,—"if you will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My condition was very similar to yours, I suffered from those awful bearing down pains, weakness, backache, nervousness and headaches until I could hardly drag around. Today I am strong, well and happy because I followed the advice of a friend who had been greatly benefited by this old-fashioned root and herb medicine."

Nearly fifty years ago Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass. prepared from medicinal roots and herbs Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its fame has spread from shore to shore. You will now find in every community or neighborhood some woman who has been restored to health by its use, or has some friend who has. Therefore ask your neighbor.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials such as the following are on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., and prove the merit of this medicine. Therefore no woman should continue to suffer from such ailments.

Mrs. Frick Tells of Her Experience

PERRYSBURG, OHIO—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a neighbor and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles and she took the Vegetable Compound and it helped her. So then I went and got some and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see a woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. ADA FRICK, R. Generous, Indeed

Longers at the club had a certain man under discussion. Some said he was generous. Some said otherwise. Finally a lawyer walked in who knew the man well. To the newcomer they appealed to say whether the individual in question was generous or not.

"Judge for yourself," responded the lawyer. "When I knew him he was a dollar-a-year man with the government and was giving his entire salary to his wife for pin money."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Should Use Swamp-Root

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Toy balloons now are given longer life by dipping them into a gummy preparation before they are filled.

Circumstances never made the man do right who didn't do right in spite of them.

Beyond Price

His Neighbor—Why don't you get rid of that measly hound of yours? He's only a mongrel and nothing but a nuisance.

Mr. Meekinmild—I wouldn't part with him for any money. Nuisance he may be. Mongrel he is. But he's the only member of my household that respects and obeys me.

Hobbs—I hope you're not one of those who borrow trouble?
Dobbs—No, I borrow money to get out of trouble.—Boston Transcript.

Self-love is the greatest of flatterers.

A philanthropist lives not for himself but for the world.

Most people would be content with their lot if it was only a lot of money.

Silencing Scandalmonger

Give me good proof of what you have alleged.—Shakespeare.

Persons afflicted with dementia praecox comprise about 55 per cent of the total number of inmates of institutions for mental diseases.

He wants worth who dares not praise a foe.

Everything succeeds with people of sweet and cheerful disposition.

THE ONLY WAY

Education Pays in Leadership, Influence and Honors

An investigation published by the United States Bureau of Education shows that of all the people in the United States who have performed distinguished service and received high honors that there was:

- One person out of each 150,000 who had no schooling.
- One person out of each 37,500 with a common school education.
- One person out of each 1,724 with a high school education.
- One person out of each 187 with a college education.

The above lines show the comparative chances of no schooling and with the different grades of education. Parents who give their children a common school education give them four times the chance to become a leader and receive distinction that the child with no schooling has. Those who give their children a high school education give them 87 times the chance, and the parents who sacrifice and give their children a college education give them more than 800 times the chance of the child without schooling.—E. J. Bodman in Banker-Farmer.

In the Palm Court, Majestic

ON THE WORLD'S LARGEST SHIP, WHITE STAR LINE

The Palm Court is one of the wonders of modern steamship construction, with its lofty ceiling, its pillars, its railed balcony and its spreading palms. It adjoins the a la carte restaurant and is a favorite rendezvous after meals, as coffee is served here, and concert music is furnished by an orchestra.

Serving a Rapidly Growing Industrial Territory

No. 8 in a series of statements about this Company's business

The announcement that the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has been awarded the Charles A. Coffin Medal for 1923, is a tribute to the territory in which this Company operates as well as the service it renders.

This award was made to this Company in competition with the electric light and power companies of the United States "for distinguished contribution to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry."

EIGHTY-ONE per cent of the electricity sold by Public Service Company of Northern Illinois is power. Power is essential to production and the industries on the lines of this Company have available for their requirements the greatest pool of electricity of any similar area in the world.

In addition to supplying electric light to 160,000 homes, stores, offices and factories, furnishing electric street lighting in 137 cities and towns and power to pump water in 69 communities, this Company serves a continually increasing list of industries with electric power.

Some of the large users of electric power on the lines of this Company are:

- | | |
|------------------------------|------------------------------|
| Hurley Machine Co. | Biflex Products Co. |
| American Manganese Steel Co. | Borg & Beck Co. |
| General Refractories Co. | Phoenix Horse Shoe Co. |
| Aluminum Products Co. | Cyclone Fence Co. |
| Buda Company | Libby, McNeill & Libby |
| Goulds Milling Co. | Zion Industries |
| A. M. Legg Shoe Co. | Pontiac Shoe Mfg. Co. |
| Inland Glass Co. | American Can Company |
| Continental Can Co. | Inland Steel Co. |
| Paramount Knitting Co. | Joliet Milling Co. |
| Colonial Fireplace Co. | Chicago Hardware Foundry Co. |
| Creamery Package Co. | Sandow Motor Co. |
| Harvey Motor Truck Co. | Calumet Chemical Co. |
| Illinois Clay Products Co. | Advance Terra Cotta Co. |
| Federal Match Corp. | Chicago Steel Car Co. |
| American Sanitary Mfg. Co. | Lacon Woolen Mills |
| Crown Stove Co. | Toy Tinkers |
| Arlington Seating Co. | Coonley Mfg. Co. |
| Armour Fertilizer Works | Whiting Corporation |
| Gilbert & Bennett Mfg. Co. | Mather Stock Car Co. |
| American Tar Products Co. | Bliss & Laughlin Inc. |
| American Bottle Co. | Interstate Foundry Co. |
| Abbott Laboratories | Brownell Improvement Co. |
| American Stove Co. | National Envelope Co. |
| | Russell Grader Co. |

While the above list of companies represents but a fraction of the number of businesses in the territory, it shows the diversity of efforts and the important part electric power supplied by this Company plays in production.

In addition to its electric service this Company supplies gas service to 90,254 residential and industrial customers.
